

ENG 252: Survey of British Literature I

Instructor: Mrs. Cheryl Metcalf

Course Overview

ENG 201: Survey of British Literature I course is designed to expose the student to the study the major British works from the Anglo-Saxon period to the late 18th century. In addition to reading and interpreting a wide variety of literature, the course also will focus on the literary movements and culture of this period. Critical writing will be required. This course may require participation in activities and events outside the classroom that relate to the course outcomes.

In addition, this course will aim to familiarize the student with English authors/literature and to correlate this exposure with the history of England. Students will investigate the growth and development of the English language through the examination of major British authors, their cultures, contributions, and influences upon the world of writers. For the student, there is a primary emphasis on evaluation, interpretation, and application to their lives. This is achieved by responding to the literature through the writing process, listening and viewing skills, oral communication, and technology. Through discussion, research and writing, the student will learn to analyze literature and see each author's work in its appropriate historical context.

Reading and Writing Assignments

Reading Assignments run continuously throughout the course. An important element for understanding discussions, lectures, and writing assignments is a dedication by students to critically read all assignments on time. Short cuts to reading, such as viewing a movie, reading explanatory notes, or other vices in replacement of accomplishing the actual reading assignments, will set the student up for failure.

Writing Assignments will coincide with all readings. Students will write a variety of assignments, critical and creative. Students are expected to proofread, revise, and edit all work before submitting the final draft for grading. Students may inquire peer editing but all work must be the student's original work. Papers are due and accepted before/on the "due date." Papers will not be graded after the given "due date" regardless of excused or unexcused absence. Any papers received after the due date will be given 50% of the given credit for the assignment with no critique or evaluation of the work. All writing assignments must be the original work of the students.

Classroom Discussions

Classroom Discussions will be an engagement of ideas among students with facilitating direction from the instructor. Students are required to complete all reading assignments and notetaking in this course to be prepared for effective classroom discussions. Prepared classroom discussions are an important element for effective communication.

Course Rationale

Basic awareness of literature is a characteristic of the educated individual. Through exposure to the outstanding authors and works of our English literary heritage, students gain understanding of history, psychology, sociology, business, human resources, and cultural diversity. In addition, the skills acquired in this course will help to prepare students for the nuance of communication in the professional world. In relation to EGCC's college-wide outcomes, this course incorporates activities, assignments, and exercises that develop and improve students' language literacy and cultural literacy.
